

Abstract of the Disclosure

A delivery system for inclusion in an edible composition is formulated to have at 5 least one active component encapsulated within an encapsulating material, whereby the delivery system has a tensile strength suitable for delivering the active component at a desired release rate.